

Join us for our ONLIME Seminar

Exploring the relevance of local methodologies across time and space

Friday October 21, 2022

This ONLIME aims to bring together researchers, academics, service and field workers, and policy analysts from a range of disciplines and sectors to share knowledge, experiences, developments and learning on research approaches, guiding worldviews or contextual factors that are specific to the Caribbean region and Caribbean peoples.

The ONLIME, organized by the Caribbean Research Methodologies (CRM) team, is intended to inspire critical thinking and discourse on shifting from a decolonizing framework to an affirming approach aimed at developing, embracing and utilizing Caribbean ways of knowing.

PROGRAMME

3:00 – 3:15 pm ONLIME WELCOME

Welcome: Dr. Margaret Nakhid-Chatoor, University of Trinidad and Tobago (Facilitator)

Opening Remarks: Dr. Shakeisha Wilson Scott, Knox Community College

3:15 – 3:45 pm Presentation: Dr. Shenhaye Ferguson, University of Denver

Understanding the role of home community environments shaping first-generation Jamaican university students' access and persistence in HED: Using Liming and Photovoice methodologies'

Response and Ole talk Moderator: Dr. Saran Stewart, University of Connecticut

3:45 – 4:15 pm Presentation: Tekweni Chataira, Laidlaw College, Aotearoa New Zealand

Exploring Kupepeta 'winnowing' as a metaphor for reading the Bible seMadzimai 'as women' of Zimbabwe

Response and Ole talk Moderator: Dr. Margaret Nakhid-Chatoor

4:15 – 4:30 pm	Video highlights of book launch Aotearoa New Zealand and updates for book launch Trinidad and Tobago (Dr. Margaret Nakhid-Chatoor)
4:40 – 5:00 pm	Open Discussion – Chevy Eugene, York University (Facilitator) Guided topic: “Pushing forward on local research methodologies by academia”
Closing remarks	Professor Camille Nakhid, Auckland University of Technology

Thank you for being part of this Online Seminar!

Times in the participating countries:

*Friday 21 October, 2022 at 3 pm – Trinidad and Tobago

Friday 21 October, 2022 at 2 pm – Jamaica

Friday 21 October, 2022 at 3 pm – New York

Friday 21 October, 2022 at 3 pm – Toronto

Friday 21 October, 2022 at 8 pm - London, UK

Saturday 22 October, 2022 at 8 am – Auckland, Aotearoa New Zealand

Saturday 22 October, 2022 at 6 am – Sydney, Australia